

MAD SCIENCE at the Johnston Library July 6, 2007
Des Moines Register

Mad Scientist Dan Chase of Des Moines' west side does a science experiment using air as volunteer Grace Lender, 6, of Johnston looks on during a presentation on Friday at Johnston Public Library.

Michael Mroczkowski, 7, of Johnston gets ready to do an experiment using water during a Mad Science presentation on Friday at Johnston Public Library.

Isabel Officer, 6, of Urbandale counts out beads during a science demonstration during Mad Science on Friday at Johnston Public Library. The kids used beads to represent various substances that make up atmospheres of planets in our solar system.

Trey Officer, 8, of Urbandale constructs a bouncy ball comet during a Mad Science presentation on Friday at Johnston Public Library.